The Question of the Future: "Were YOU in Khaki?"

THE TRIP TO ALMONT.

A delegation of "D" Company's men went to Almont the other day to witness a hockey match—or, to be more explicit, we should say, they went to participate in the game, but the opinion of the men who did not comprise the team varied as to whether the players actually played or whether they merely looked on. Piffleful as it may seem, it is nevertheless true—we lost. It can hardly seem possible, but it is true—the 73rd lost, and to make matters worse, the prevailing opinion is that we lost because—well—er—four of the seven men comprising the team actually claim Almont as their home town.

Regardless of the outcome of the game, the men so far forgot themselves as to overstay their leave, owing no doubt, to the fear of facing the Battalion. (Some heartless person suggested that it was feminine attractions which detained them. We, of course, know it is not the case). And they are now on C.B.

There are two factions now: one claiming that the punishment was a severe one and the other that they should have been shot at sunrise. No matter, the fact remains that the 73rd lost, and four men of the team actually live in Almont.

NOTE BY EDITOR.—We just heard a remark that we are sore because we were not invited. Maybe so, maybe so! Will some young lady from Almont send us an invitation to call just to show the rest of the bunch that they are wrong. You know one of those nice invitations with "refreshments served" in the corner.

A PRETTY COMPLIMENT

"I don't quite get the meaning of that title to your little mag., 'The Red Hackle,'" quoth a maiden fair to one of our corporals.

"Well, it's a red feather, as explained in our first issue," replied the aspiring N.C.O. "It was given to our ancestors on account of their great bravery," he added. "You see, the idea was to have them display the red feather as they never would the white."

Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: "Company Office in the morning!"

OUR BOYS IN KAIKI

Left! left! left, right, left!
Marching straight and true;
Bugles sounding; drummers pounding;
The hour at last falls due
To board the ship, and cross the sea,
To make the tyrant Germans flee.

Left! left! left, right, left!
Marching by in files,
Aching hearts, bursting hearts
Hidden under smiles,
Ah! how brave the dear boys are,
As they go marching off to war.

Oh! Canada be proud!
Let forth a cheer, a hearty cheer,
A cheer both long and loud
And let us pray that come what may,
They'll help bring on the better day.

Our hearts all follow you;
And while the tears spring to our eyes
We know you'll all be true;
And feeling each to Christ is dear,
Fight bravely, without thought of fear.

Good-bye; again good-bye!
Are you down-hearted?
Not I! not I! not I!
So, hip! hip, hip hurrah! brave men,
And may you soon be home again.

E. A. B.

WE WONDER WHY?

Aye, we wonder why a newly appointed Sergeant always wants a three-days' pass. We approached McConiskey of "A" Company, and Sergeant Miller of the Medical Office, and they tell us it is simply to attend to personal business. Now, see here, fellows: Just between us, is it really business? or—you know three stripes look pretty good. Kind of makes the ladies take notice.

The men of "D" Company are holding a dance at the Auditorium on Friday, March 10th, and are fully determined to make it a success, in fact they claim it will be the best Company dance the 73rd have held. How about going down to the Auditorium on Friday, the 10th, and having a look around? They say they only have a few tickets left, and, by the way, the pipers will be there.

It is the spirit that counts.

DOUBLY VICTORIOUS.

"Perhaps the evil I most dread is the evil of improper companionship" a remark made by a mother to the Editor,

The manhood which asserted itself when we enlisted will, no doubt, detain us from joining the company of men who may make a bar-room their rendezvous, and yet the fear of being criticized may, perhaps, cause us to temporarily forget the hopes and prayers of our dear ones.

The resistance power in the men who made Canada what it is to day, should be employed by us, and the fear of ridicule (which has in a good many instances been responsible for drunkenness) should not affect us.

Drink in itself is a lesser evil; it's the actions of the men under its influence which causes the trouble. Can we not resist its beckoning finger and continue on our way regardless of its persistent demands?

Let us not forget the hopes of those we love. Let us not forget the prayers in our behalf. Let us remember that our duty to our beloved goes hand in hand with our duty to King and Country, and return from the terrible conflict doubly victorious. Victorious from the Hun and Temptation.

THE CANTEEN-CANTER.

We were very much impressed with a statement made by our corpulent Sergeant of the Canteen, that the average sales of pies, cakes, candies, cigars, cigarettes, etc., etc., amounted to—well now—we have forgotten the exact figures, but being somewhat of a mathematical turn of mind, we have arrived at the conclusion that, averaging the sales at 10 cents each, the number of times Sergeant MacLerie and Lance Corporal Warden go to the cash register runs into the millions per month—more or less. But we can safely say that the distance covered by those two worthies, figured down to actual feet, would be enough to go around the world once and still have a couple of hundred miles to spare—and yet they talk about route marches.

OUR PIPE BAND.

To see our pipe band walking at the head of a parade with the pipes a-burru' is inspiring, and to see our Pipe Major at the head of the pipers is "some more inspiring"; and, as old Sandy says, "What would the 73rd be without our pipes?"

Congratulations

Since going to press Captain Brown of "B" Company has been advanced to the rank of Major.

Major Brown was Captain and Adjutant in the South African War with the 10th Imperial Yeomanery under Lord Methuen; was twice mentioned in despatches; once by Lord Methuen and again by Lord Kitchener.

He also holds the Queen's South African Medal, with five clasps, and the King's South African Medal with two clasps.

The Officers and men of the 73rd hereby extend their heartiest congratulations to

Major John Hector Innes Brown

HEROS AS MONEY-MAKERS

The ladies of Crescent Street Presbyterian Church have determined upon starting a new and lucrative field of labor for some of the 73rd, on their return from the field of Mars. It is a compliment to our men to be considered eligible for the profession of Man Millinery—a most exclusive as well as lucrative calling.

At a recent entertainment in connection with the church, about seventy soldiers were selected to take part in a contest of hat-trimming. Some of the creations can only be described as "tearful and wonderful," while one or two belonged to that class which enthusiastic womenfolk refer to as poems."

The present war has upset a good many old-fashioned notions as to what each sex can do. Women have shown themselves to be experts in ploughing, harvesting, taxi-driving, etc., and there is no reason why soldiers should not become famous as milliners. Who knows but that some "mute, inglorious" Worth (of Parisian fame) may not in the near future spring from our ranks and add a new lustre to its record, which will necessitate a further decoration as companion to the "Red Hackle."

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

No better appeal can be made to the public than the appeal by Sir Rudyard Kipling in his "Absent Minded Beggar," printed during the Boer War:—EDITOR

"There are families by thousands, far too proud to beg or speak.

And they'll put their sticks and bedding up the spout.

And they'll live on half o' nothing, paid 'em punctual once a week.

'Cause the man that earns the wage is ordered out.

He's an absent-minded beggar, but he heard his country call.

And his reg'ment didn't need to send to find him.

He chucked his job and joined it—so the job before us all

Is to help the home that Tommy's left behind him!

Duke's job — cook's job — gardener, baronet, groom.

Mews or palace or paper-shop, there's someone gone away!

Each of 'em doing his country's work (And who's to look after the room?)

Pass the hat for your credit's sake, And pay, pay, pay!

FOR THE INFORMATION OF

Lance Corporal McDonald: There is many a slip 'twixt cup and lip.

Lance Corporal Beasley: MQ MUST NEVER be written in the text of a message, certainly not in the A A A line. It is apt to cause confusion and consternation at the receiving end.

Private Christie: Flags are supposed to be held above the head. The human face is not an ideal background.

Private Glen: If you must practise bayonet fighting, join the class. Do not use your flag—it might break.

Private Rudge: I, oblique stroke, C means—In charge of.

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH.

"What is the meaning of those words ('Nemo me impune lacessit' on your crest?" asked a young lady, whose knowledge of the dead languages was limited, of a 73rd Highlander.

"It means," replied the soldier, "No one insults me with impunity." But, noticing the expression of uncertainty upon the girl's face, he added, "Of course that is a rather literary rendering of the motto. In plain colloquial Canadian we should say, 'Anyone getting fresh with me takes big chances.'"

Somewhere In Belgium

(By Private L. H. Christie.)

The crude little cottage had been surrounded and two stalwart peasant boys routed out, but only one gun had been found. Each lad stoutly swore that he was responsible for the sniping. The old mother stood near them.

"Choose one or we will shoot both!" the German officer again ordered the old woman.

Hershrunken, toil-worn frame seemed to suffer the pain of death. She wound her rough hands in her apron. Terror, hatred, love, devotion, helplessness filled her eyes.

Alphonse, the tall, light-haired boy was urging the smaller and more delicate Petro by gestures and eager, low words to yield the punishment to him.

With equal intensity the little fellow pleaded to take the blame, because Alphonse would be better able to care for their mother.

The imperturbable German, not asking for more than one life, set the decision before the mother herself.

The soldiers stood waiting for their part in the procedure.

The old woman turned aside. "Take Alphonse," she groaned.

Surprised, but satisfied, they took the boy to the side of the house and fired upon him.

Perhaps the thought of another youth, perhaps the wonder of why the old woman had chosen, perhaps the burden of conscience delayed the officer as he followed his men from the yard.

"Quick, Petro," whispered the mother, and the boy who had been standing rigid, with the horror of his brother's death gripping his heart, came to life. Like a shadow he disappeared. The next instant there was a shot and the German officer fell in the road.

A pack of wild beasts rushed towards the house. Two of them fell.

Somewhere inside the dwelling Petro was killed, but there was neither shot nor cry.

They found the old peasant kneeling beside the doorway.

"I said, 'Take Alphonse!' oh, God," she moaned, but, she shrieked with fierce satisfaction as her enemies appeared, "because Petro could aim better with his gun!"

Three graves on the right of the cottage held the peasants, but three graves on the left held their toll.

A Song

"IT'S A LIE."

(Any Old Tune Will Do.)

The 73rd Battalion is the best behaved of all.

We're always up in the morning before the bugle-call.

Chorus:

It's a lie, it's a lie,
Oh, you know you're telling a lie
You "Son of a gun" you're telling a lie.

Oh, you know you're telling a lie.

For breakfast every morning we get to table quick,

We eat just what they give us and never raise a kick.

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

They give us liver and bacon, they never give us beans;

And as for smoky tea, why, we don't know what it means.

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

The cook he is a gentleman, he never once gets sore.

He says, "Now men, be sure that you always ask for more."

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

For dinner we get turkey, and sometimes oyster stew,

A choice of tea or coffee and a pint of Molson's brew.

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

Now lately we have been allowed to stay out 'till eleven,

But no one thinks of doing that; we're always back by seven.

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

Now have you ever noticed as we walk along the street,

The girls all look at our overshoes and say "What dainty feet."

Chorus—It's a lie, etc.

We've got the best of officers, they know their business too;

They know just what we want and they'll always see us through.

Chorus:

That's the truth, that's the truth.

Now for once you're telling the truth;

You "Son of a gun," you're telling the truth;

Now for once you're telling the truth.

Our Majors and our Captains are the best that can be found

And as for Colonel Davidson, he suits us to the ground.

Chorus—That's the truth, etc.

Company Signallers Make Good Showing

If there is any squad that deserves credit, it is the Company Signalling Squad, a squad which is distributed throughout the various companies. They have just about completed their course of instruction under Lieut. Sheppard, the Signalling Officer, and from the results shown, they have done very well indeed.

One of the chief reasons of the really first-class work done by the Company Flagmen, is because of the healthy and keen competition that has been manifest between the various companies.

Lieut. Sheppard has wisely encouraged this, as he is evidently of the opinion that this is one of the best ways to produce good results.

In the various Company competitions held, "B" Company has come out on top. They are represented by Lance Corporal Beasley and Privates Christie, Rudge, Ballantyne, and White. Privates Williams, Wooderson, and Whitehead form the second string, and are rapidly becoming proficient. Their closest rivals are the men from "D" Company under the leadership of Lance Corporal McDonald, who has set his mind on getting ahead of Capt. Brown's men, but up to now he has not met with any success. The best that and his associates have been able to do was to make a draw in the Semaphore Message. As regards the Morse, they were 14 minutes behind. "A" and "C" Companies were not far behind. Privates Russell, Ingham and Doody worked hard for the "A" team, but they failed to make the running.

Consolation comes the way of "A" Company, however, in the individual tests, as Private Russell of the "A's" comes first with 395 points out of a possible 400. McDonald of "D" Company comes next with 391, while Christie, of "B," brings up the third position with 389 points. His place is shared with his confrere, Private Rudge, who secured a like number of points. Ballantyne of "B," and Glen of "C" come next.

The work of the Company Signallers, considering the small amount of time that has been devoted to it, has been excellent, and has brought forth praise from the various Company Commanders.

In the Buzzer work, Jimmy Ballantyne of "B" and Lance Corporal MacDonald of "D" show up best with Rudge in next place. Most of the others are clustered. Map sketching has also been tried out with fair results.

Farewell to the 73rd

Oh! the swing o' the kilts and the berr o' the pipes
As the lads gae marching by,
Brings a stound to my heart and a woofu' fear
And into my een the blinding tear,
As I ask myself wi' a deep, deep sigh,
Will they a' come back again?

O God! they are going off to fight
'Gainst a rule of tyranny,
'Gainst a power that wills that "Might makes right,"
A power that would shatter the dawning light,
A power that would fetter true liberty,
And make us slaves again.

Oh! gie them strength o' heart and arm,
And a will to smite the foe;
And if by death some man fa' down
And ne'er come back to share renown
No matter; the victor's crown we know
Shall diadem each brow.

And so we say farewell dear lads,
Wi' your kilts and bagpipes shrill;
May God be wi' ye and keep ye true,
True to yoursels and true to "The Blue"
And true to Him of Calvary's Hill
Who died for each of you.

CARTOONS PLEASE LARGE AUDIENCE.

Victoria Hall, Westmount, proved far too small to hold all who wanted to attend Mr. A. G. Racey's illustrated lecture last night on "The War in Cartoon," in aid of the Westmount Soldiers' Wives' League, 23rd committee. Tickets had practically all been sold days before the date, and pieces of tickets were sold for standing room last night. The audience was most enthusiastic and Mr. Racey has received many requests to repeat the lecture. It consisted of something over two hundred of his own clever cartoons shown by stereopticon and divided into sections as he said the way he "would like to divide the Germans." It was devoid of elaborate details or long statistics, so that, according to the lecturer, "the young people could explain it to the old folks." Mr. Racey's explanatory comments were witty and at times, when dealing with the outrages the enemy were guilty of, eloquently denunciatory and never anything but interesting. He has a pleasing delivery and a voice whose carrying power enabled him to be distinctly heard throughout the big audience. While his humorous cartoons kept the audience in high glee those dealing with the Lusitania victims, the outrages in Belgium and the martyrdom of Edith Cavell were thrillingly pathetic.—From The Montreal Herald, Feb. 24th, 1916.

We have nothing to add to the above. It was simply great, and how about Mr. Racey's cartoon appearing in this issue. Can you beat it?

ECHOES FROM THE PAST.

Some time ago Sergeant-Major Hawkins, by walking in front of a street car compelled the motor-man to keep his car parallel with the parade. (Note.)

First Young Lady—"Oh, dear, it is positively awful. That is the second car that passed us and won't stop, and it is so cold, too."

Second Young Lady—"Isn't it a pity that that tall handsome soldier from the 73rd isn't here to walk between the tracks. I'll bet he'd make the car stop in a hurry."

It is the spirit that counts.

"HAVING A LAUGH"
Reading the Red Hackle. They enjoy it, we hope you will.

"THE CANTEEN"
The Sergt. in the foreground is getting a drink. Perhaps it's not the kind he would prefer, but it has to do.

"Being Innoculated" against disease and "German Pest"

The only way the Editor could possibly "Ring In"
He's the man with the Glass, not the "man with the Bottle"

"THE PIONEERS"

They are the boys that build the supports for the trenches. And may the Lord have mercy on their souls, if the job is a poor one.

England expects every man to do his duty—every dollar helps.

It is the spirit that counts.

THE YOUNG RECRUIT.

He is but a laddie yet,
 With his happy boyish face,
 And he wears his khaki garments
 With a slender boyish grace.
 Did you see his brave glengarry?
 Did you hear his manly foot?
 He's a soldier in the making;
 We admire our young recruit.

The little gifts we give him,
 May they cheer his merry heart.
 To the honour of his country,
 He is playing well his part.
 He is learning very quickly
 How to march and how to shoot.
 He's a soldier in the making;
 We admire our young recruit.

He is but a laddie yet,
 With glad youth upon his face;
 But we miss his merry presence,
 And home's a different place
 Since he left us with a hand-clasp.
 O, may our prayers bear fruit!
 God send His holy angels
 To protect our young recruit.

J. REID.

Seventy-Nine Years Old and Still Anxious to Fight for His Country.

Private —, a veteran of the Indian wars, offers services to the Canadian contingents, gray-haired, with the loss of one eye, he is still desirous of doing his bit.

Our Recruiting Officer was approached by — a few weeks ago and asked whether it was possible to join the 73rd. When informed that his age might possibly stand in his way, he drew himself up, threw out his chest and replied: "For 40 years I fought under the King's colours; for 40 years I have been a soldier; I am still hale and hearty, and now when the crisis which demands the services of every man is at hand, you hesitate to accept me. Why, mon, mon, I can do my bit like the rest of them—aye, and better."

That's the spirit that counts—the English spirit.

Lance-Corporal Crozier wanted to know why we mention the fact that he goes to Notre Dame de Grace, while we refrain from writing anything about our own frequent visits to Westmount. Well, it is just like this—you know—er—oh!—dash it all—we go to Westmount for the same reason that he goes to Notre Dame de Grace!

The Red Hackle is edited by Lance-Corp. H. King, of the 73rd Battalion, R.H.C., C.E.F.

Regimental Jewellery

We have recently cut special dies for the Crests of the following Canadian Regiments—

Grenadier Guards
Canadian Field Artillery
73rd Highlanders
Canadian Army Service Corps
3rd Victoria Rifles
65th Carabiniers
Canadian Army Medical Corps
McGill Overseas Corps

These Crests can be made up as Fobs, Stick Pins, Handy Pins or Buttons, and are most appropriate as gifts to Military Friends.

MACHINE GUN SECTION NOTES

By "Cam."

In introducing ourselves to the readers of The Red Hackle, we are hopeful that we shall not be misunderstood.

We of the M. G. S. realize that the nature of our work makes of us a little family apart, but it is not our intention to consider ourselves as being separated from the battalion in any way.

Originally we were attached to various Companies, and these Companies still hold a large place in our hearts as is evident by the fact that each man is constantly boosting the Company from which he was transferred.

In this little corner so kindly given to us, we shall try to refrain from talking "shop" and make ourselves as entertaining as possible. Any personal remarks we may make at times with regard to the Signalling Section must be overlooked, for, to use a paradox, we have been "friendly enemies for some time."

Two of our members have already introduced marching songs to the battalion, "The Boys of the 73rd" and "It's a Lie." In view of the fact that on route marches the Signalling Section is in the lead and as they appear to be "running away" with the idea that they are "some speed artists," we have commenced to write them a marching song to be set to the tune of the Dead March.

We have an unofficial member who accompanies us on marches whenever possible, and we are justly proud of him. We feel certain that he does not wish us to announce his name to the Battalion, so we shall not do so. However, we wish everyone to understand that he does not pay us more than a dollar and ten cents a day, and he deducts the ten "bones" for uniform just the same. We felt highly flattered when he said that the boys of the M. G. S. were the most musical bunch in the battalion, until we heard that his favorite song was Lauder's "Wee Deoch-an Doris."

As the battalion marched through the Jewish part of the city we noticed a large sign printed in Yiddish characters. We asked Private Inglis if he could read it. "I canna read it," said Jimmy, "but if I had my fiddle I could play it."

The following masterpiece has been composed specially for the readers of The Red Hackle. It is one of those short but brilliant poems which have made British literature famous the world over. It is the beautiful simplicity of the poem which appeal to the thinking mind, and on that account the superficial reader may miss much of the true charm and gracefulness of rhythm in this work of art. We are overpowered by mighty and tumultuous emotions when we devour this priceless gem, and the pity is that it is anonymous. One thing we know, it was written at Goodwin's corner, and was inspired by a meeting of Salvationists. Without further comment we present:

"The Salvation Lass."

(A very touching poem.)

She touched me with her winning smile.

She touched me with her pleading;
She touched me with her simple style
Of prayer, and bible reading.

She touched my heart, my conscience too--

With grief I thought I'd holler.

Then at the "farewell offering",

She touched me half a dollar.

To The People Of Montreal

The men of all ranks now use this periodical as a means of thanking them for their kindness and courtesies. We undoubtedly shall be on our way soon, and the memory of your actions toward making it possible for us to have a pleasant time will always be with us. We particularly wish to thank the ladies of Montreal, the officers' wives, and those interested, for their continuous work in our behalf and for the courtesies they have extended. We also would like to include in this, our thanks to the various churches and institutions which so notably contributed towards our comfort.

THE PATRIOTIC RAG PICKERS.

A new method of raising money for the soldiers' funds was inaugurated in the city of Westmount by the Soldiers' Wives Patriotic League. Their idea is to have all the housewives clean their cellars and all the children go rag picking, and have it compressed into bales and sold, the money to go to the boys at the front.

A new way to get rid of the Hun pest—One dose of Seventy-thirdaritis.

THINGS WE SHOULD NOT DO IN THE TRENCHES:

When you come across a Hun with a rifle levelled at your chest, do not stop and argue. Take his rifle away and make him sing "Rule Britannia."

Do not take more than one trench a day single-handed—give the other fellows a chance.

Do not use hair tonic or perfumes of any kind in the trenches. The scent may give your position away.

Do not eat more than three soft-boiled eggs and four slices of toast for breakfast. You may spoil your appetite for lunch; and particularly bear this in mind: do not, under any circumstances hog a parcel from home. Pass it around to the rest of the boys and refrain from helping yourself until you are positive that they have all they want—in fact, if there is anything left, save it for to-morrow; they may need it then.

Do not use the flannel on the end of your pull-through for a polishing cloth for your boots. You may need it to clean your rifle with. In fact, to be safe, do not do anything but shoot.

ON THE QUIET—SH!

Sergeant R. W. Gee of "A" Company is wearing the Sunny Jim smile these days, owing, no doubt, to the fact that the words of endearment he hears every evening are aplenty. Sh! sh!. It's a secret, but Lance Corporal Peattie of the Orderly Room told us that Sergeant Gee is contemplating matrimony. — "It's all right, old man. Lots of men of Montreal have done the same."

Private S. T. Slater did not want it generally known. "You know it's like this," he said. "I like a girl and she likes me and, well, some of these days I am going to ask her to marry me; but you will keep it quiet, won't you?" We promised we would.

The last four days our Capt. Brown had a very bashful Private hanging around his Company Office door. Private Lovesay, whose face resembled in color that of a ripe tomato, tried to screw up courage enough to ask the Captain's permission to get married. He finally managed it on the fourth day, and is now walking around emitting sighs of relief every ten minutes. Nothing like courage, Lovey, old top—nothing like it!

A New Cure for Rheumatism?

It is not often that a Scotchman is gotten the best of, but to the Army Dental Corps must be given the credit of "putting one over" on McCracken of "B" Company.

When our M. O., after examining Mac, told him that he probably was suffering from a slight attack of muscular rheumatism, and that he was perfectly fit to go on parade, Mac misunderstood him and thought he said "fit for dental parade," and so fell in with the rest of the dental patients.

An hour later McCracken was noticed standing in the corner, softly moaning to himself, a vacant stare in his eyes, and holding his jaws. When asked what had occurred, he stopped counting stars long enough to swear a blue streak, and inquired if a new cure for rheumatism was to have eight teeth extracted!

To The Folks at Home.

OUR CAUSE IS JUST.

We are happy in the knowledge that we are doing our little bit.

Will you help our cause by asking the men in our home town, if they are doing theirs?

—who count it a necessity, and for it daily sacrifice much precious time—the Gillette Safety Razor is a friend indeed.

Its strokes are so free and velvet-smooth that at first you can scarcely realize how clean a job it is making. With it you can finish shaving while you would be getting an ordinary razor stopped, or waiting for the call of "Next!"

A turn of the handle adjusts the Gillette for the lightest shave on a tender skin or the closest work on a heavy beard. It is always adaptable to the moment's need, and always ready—no stopping or honing. Wherever there is soap and water, it will shave you with safety, comfort and despatch. To The Mothers, Wives And Sweethearts

We are secure in the knowledge that we are doing what you expect us to do. We are proud of the fact that we are able to combat with the merciless Hun. Our country needed us and we responded. We hope you, too, feel as proud of us as we feel of ourselves. We ask you not to worry, but to bear in mind that we went willingly and cheerfully
