CANADIAN VEGETABLES FOR EVERY DAY

Vegetables raw, vegetables freshly cooked or vegetables canned, should be included in each day's menu. Vegetables in some form are within the reach of all, every day in the year.

Have a garden, even on the city lot. Buy fresh vegetables when possible. Can for winter use or buy commercially canned products and thus supply the tonics needed to build the body and keep it in repair.

Vegetables all supply vitamins, minerals, water and bulk. Some provide carbohydrate in considerable quantity, and others furnish protein.

Two generous servings of non-starchy vegetable, one starchy and one raw green vegetable or tomatoes, every day, is a good rule.

Vegetables Furnish Minerals

Iron, calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, sulphur, copper and other necessary minerals are found in varying amounts. The proper combinations make them easily utilized in body reactions.

Vegetables Supply Vitamins

Vitamins promote growth and health. The vegetables in which they are most abundant are spinach, tomatoes, cabbage and lettuce, but all others contain these essential food elements in smaller amounts.

Vegetables Aid in Eliminating Poisons

The coarse fibrous material in the leaf and stem vegetables, as well as the framework of the root vegetables, does more to free the body of poisonous waste than any artificial method.

Some Vegetables Supply Protein

Legumes (peas, beans and lentils) contain a high proportion of protein or tissue building material and due to their low cost are a valuable source.

Starchy Vegetables

Roots and tubers such as potatoes, parsnips, and also those in which the seed is used, as corn, peas and beans, give a satisfactory supply of starch.

Vegetables as Blood Regulators

Some foods leave an acid ash or residue in the blood after being broken down or burned in the body. These acid forming foods are meat, fish, eggs, poultry, cereals, crackers and bread. Some other foods, among which are fruits and vegetables, leave an alkaline ash. A balanced diet will avoid acidosis. We should therefore use an abundance of fruits and vegetables in the daily diet.

GENERAL PREPARATION

Care should be taken in preparation for cooking, as this is shown in the appetizing appearance of the vegetable when it reaches the table.

VEGETABLE	METHOD
Asparagus	Cut off coarse lower part of stalks as far down as they will snap. Remove all scales and wash, using a brush.
Beans (string).....	Remove strings, wash, break or cut into one-inch pieces.
Beans (dried).....	Wash and soak overnight.
Beets	Scrub carefully with a small brush, being careful not to break the skin. Cut off tops two inches above the root.
Brussels Sprouts.....	Remove wilted leaves. Wash and let stand in salted water one-half hour, using 1 tsp. of salt to 1 qt. water.
Cabbage	Remove all wilted leaves. Cut in quarters, remove the core, shred if desired. Let it stand in salted water one-half hour, using 1 tsp. salt to 1 qt. water.
Carrots (young).....	Wash and scrape. Cut in halves lengthwise or leave whole.
Carrots (old).....	Wash and let stand in cold water one hour, then peel thinly. Cut in $\frac{1}{4}$ inch slices.
Cauliflower	Break off outside leaves, wash. Break flowerets apart. Soak in cold salted water one-half hour, allowing 1 tsp. vinegar and 1 tsp. salt to 2 quarts water.
Celery	Break apart. Scrub each stalk with a stiff brush, let stand in cold water one hour to become crisp.
Chard (leaves).....	Wash leaves carefully in several waters.
“ (stalk).....	Prepare as celery.
Corn	Remove husks. Brush with a stiff brush to remove silk.
Egg Plant.....	Wash. Cut in 1 inch slices. Peel. Soak in salted water one-half hour.
Kohl Rabi	Wash. Peel. Cut in $\frac{1}{2}$ inch slices.
Onions	Peel under water.
Parsnips	Scrub with stiff brush. Peel. Cut in quarters lengthwise.
Peas (green).....	Shell, wash.
“ (ripe).....	Wash and soak overnight.
Potatoes (new).....	Wash, scrub with a stiff brush which will remove the tender skin.
“ (old)	Wash. Soak one hour in cold water to freshen. Peel if desired.
Salsify	Scrub with stiff brush, peel, cut into $\frac{1}{2}$ inch slices crosswise and drop at once into salted water to prevent discoloration.
Spinach	Wash carefully in several waters.
Squash	Wash, cut or break up and peel, if to be steamed. Cut in halves, but do not peel if to be baked. Remove seeds and membrane.
Tomatoes	Wash, scald, then cold dip. The skins will then be easily removed.
Turnips	Wash, peel, cut in 1-inch cubes.
Vegetable Marrow.....	Cut in 1-inch slices. Peel and remove seeds and membrane.

Some green vegetables, known as salad plants, are usually served raw, with a piquant dressing. Lettuce, endive, watercress, and young leaves of Swiss chard are in this class. Radishes, cucumbers, celery, cabbage, onions, carrots, and tomatoes are appetizing when served raw, and in this way provide highest vitamine value.

Others are not so palatable unless cooked, but care should be taken to cook in such a way that they retain their full flavour and colour.

COOKING VEGETABLES

Three methods are commonly used:—

1. Boiling
2. Steaming.
3. Baking.

All are not equally satisfactory with all vegetables.

Boiling

I. Use as little water as possible—"Cover with water and boil until tender" is no longer considered a sufficient instruction.

II. Minerals are easily dissolved into the water in which the vegetable is cooked and the longer time required the more mineral will be dissolved. Therefore, use boiling water and keep boiling constantly.

III. Vitamines are injured by heat and oxidation. The closely covered saucepan, therefore, assists in preventing this loss.

IV. Salt added to coloured vegetables while cooking preserves colour and accentuates flavour.

V. Never overcook. This injures the colour and texture.

VI. Drain well. Soggy vegetables are never attractive.

VII. Save the water, either for sauce to be served with the vegetable, or for soup. We cannot afford to lose the minerals.

The Waterless Cooker

This is a good method for cooking while preserving food value, flavour and colour. It is, however, not practical for all vegetables. Potatoes in the skins, spinach, chard, carrots and beets are the only ones which do not need watching if no water is added. A very small amount may be used with others.

Steaming

This method is generally satisfactory as little valuable food material is lost. It requires a longer time than boiling.

Baking

I. Whole. This is a valuable method for potatoes squash, carrots, beets, tomatoes and onions. No food value is lost and flavour is developed.

II. Escalloped (baking the peeled sliced vegetable in milk or sauce). This method also preserves colour, flavour and no food value is lost. Carrots, cabbage, potatoes, cauliflower and onions lend themselves to this method of preparation.

Vegetable Butter

For variation and an economy in serving buttered vegetables, allow $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter to $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot vegetable water. Place butter in a bowl and slowly pour vegetable water over, beating constantly with a Dover egg beater until cold, when it should be light in consistency and a delightful golden colour.

Add the chopped eggs to the sauce. Melt the other tablespoonful of butter and stir in the bread crumbs. Butter a baking dish and place in it a layer of asparagus, then sauce, then bread crumbs. Repeat, being sure to have a layer of crumbs on the top. Place in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven until the crumbs are brown.

1 teaspoon salt	2 cupfuls of sour cream

Minced parsley

This is a favourite European dish and an interesting variation of the usual potato soup. Cook the potatoes for fifteen minutes in the boiling water with the salt, onion and pepper. Stir in the cream, re-heat together, and serve piping hot with minced parsley sprinkled over the top.
