HALIFAX, a city and seaport, capital of the Prov. of Nova Scotia, situate in Halifax co., on the west side of Chebucto Bay, now called Halifax Harbor, a deep and spacious inlet of the Atlantic, in lat. (dockyard tablet) 44° 59' 42" N., long. 63° 35' 30" W. The streets are wide, and cross each other at right angles. Many of the houses are of wood, but many also are handsomely built of brick and stone. The harbor is one of the best in the world; it is 6 miles in length and, on the average 1 mile in width. There is excellent anchorage in every part of it, while the largest vessels can moor alongside any of the wharves. At the north end, the harbor is connected by a narrow arm, called the Narrows, with Bedford Basin, a sheet of water 6 miles by 4 in size, and capable of containing most of the navies of the world.

The city and harbor are protected by extensive fortifications, making the port one of the safest, as well as most commodious, on the seaboard of the New World. Halifax is now garrisoned exclusively by Canadian troops, numbering about 1,400, and including infantry, artillery and engineers. These are housed in large, handsome and comfortable brick barracks at the northern end overlooking the harbor. Opposite the city is the town of Dartmouth, while the scenery around both is charming. The North west Arm, a narrow arm of the sea, about 2 miles west of the city, is exceedingly pretty. The arm is about 3 miles in length and about half a mile in breadth; near by it are 3 boating clubs, while a number of pretty villas along its shores add much to the natural beauty of the locality. At the north end of the city is the Imperial dockyard, covering 14 acres.

The city of Halifax is governed by a mayor and municipal officers. The streets are lighted by electricity, and the houses are well supplied by gas and water. It has extensive steam vessel communication with many parts of the Dominion, and the Imperial colony of Newfoundland, also with the United States, the West Indies and Great Britain. Railway lines connect it with the various systems of the Continent. It is the south-eastern terminus of the Intercolonial RR.

Halifax is represented in the Dominion House of Commons by two members, and in the Provincial Legislature by three members. It is the seat of a See of the Anglican bishop of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and also a See of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Halifax. The city has 38 churches, including a Roman Catholic cathedral; it has also a large number of school houses, some of which are elegantly built structures, besides several colleges, academies and institutes, an Academy of Music, a Masonic Temple, Young Men's Christian Association building, 7 chartered banks (Nova Scotia, Union of Halifax, Montreal, Bank of B. N. America, Royal, Commerce and New Brunswick), P. O. and savings bank, city and iron castings, machinery, nails, gunpowder and county court houses, gaol, poor asylum, and asylum for the blind; besides 3 large and handsome provincial buildings for public offices; 3 hospitals (city military and naval), public market and several private ones; a large number of stores, several hotels, manufactories of iron castings, machinery, nails, gunpowder and fuse factories soap and candle works; cordage, boot and shoe, clothing, pants; and cigar factories; a ball freezing establishment, together with a sugar refinery and several newspaper offices, issuing daily, weekly and monthly publications—general, religious, temperance and trade. The city is the home also of many charities and philanthropies.

Halifax was originally called "Che-dabucto," or "Chebucto," but in 1749, when it became the capital of Acadia (comprising then N.S. and N.B.), it was named Halifax in honor of the Earl of Halifax, an active promoter of the enterprise which resulted in the founding of the city. In 1790, its population was but 4,000; in 1871, the population was 29,582; in 1891, 58,495; in 1901, 40,832. Estimated population to-day (1906), 45,000.

HALIFAX, an extensive county of Nova Scotia, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean. It is drained by the Shubenacadie, Musquodoboit and other rivers, and over its surface are scattered several considerable lakes. The indentations of its coast furnish as many as 6 or 7 harbors capable of receiving ships of the line, besides numerous other harbors visited by merchant vessels; its shores are thickly studded with islands. A belt of high broken land, varying from 20 to 60 miles in breadth, borders on the Atlantic, throughout the entire extent of the county; beyond this the surface is moderately level. Ores of lead are found near the Shubenacadie River and gold veins run through nearly the whole county. Slate abounds in the vicinity of Halifax. The chief industry of the inhabitants is directed to commerce, ship building, and the fisheries. Halifax is the most populous county in Nova Scotia. Capital, Halifax. It is in part served by the I.C.R., the Dom. Atlantic and the Halifax & Yarmouth R.R. lines. Area 1,358,960 acres. Pop., including the city of Halifax, in 1901, 74,662.

HAMILTON, a manufacturing city of Ontario, capital of Wentworth co., attractively situated on Burlington Bay, at the western extremity of Lake Ontario, 40 miles west of Toronto, and 42 miles from Niagara Falls. It has admirable shipping facilities on the Lake, and is moreover a great railroad centre, no fewer than six railway lines converging here, besides possessing an excellent system of electric roadways. Burlington Beach, the city's favorite summer resort, separating the lake and bay, is another attraction of the city, as is the Mountain, an extension of the Niagara Falls escarpment, from which fine views are to be had of the city, which nestles at its foot and beyond. It has many points of interest in and about the city, besides public parks and summering resorts; while it is near the centre of the finest fruit-growing district in Canada, and in a region of prosperous farms, now largely trenched upon by the city's rapidly expanding manufacturing and commercial trade. Traditional history connects the place with the explorations of La Salle and his voyageurs in 1669; while the region is later identified with the U.E. loyalists and the hardy sons of the Mother Country, who were among the early immigrants. The city was laid out and settled in 1813 by Geo. Hamilton, at that time and for many years afterwards member of Parliament for Gore district. It is built upon a plateau of slightly elevated ground, winding around the foot of a hilly range, which here receives the name of "The Mountain." The settled in 1813 by Geo. Hamilton, at that time each other at right angles, those extending back from the Bay having a direction nearly south and north. King street, the principal thoroughfare, runs east and west throughout the entire breadth of the town. Near the centre of the street is a large open space, and a little north is Market Square, on which stands a spacious building, occupied in the lower part as a market, while its upper stories are appropriated to the various purposes of the city government. Court House Square, an area containing the county buildings, lies between King Street and the mountain. The Court House, erected in 1878, is one of the finest edifices of the kind in the Dominion. The banks and many of the churches and stores are handsome structures. On the rising ground approaching the mountain are many elegant residences. Hamilton is the seat of the Sees of the Anglican Bishop of Niagara and of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Hamilton. Besides its two Cathedrals, the city has 62 Protestant and 7 Roman Catholic churches, 12 banks, 8 colleges, 13 public and 7 separate schools, 1 public library, 2 art schools, 2 convents, 26 charitable institutions, 4 hospitals, 1 asylum for the insane, 1 house of refuge, besides driving parks, cricket grounds, golf links and 4 theatres. Its educational facilities are the city's proud boast, as are its many and important manufacturing industries, which include machinery of almost every description, agricultural implements, iron castings, sewing machines, musical instruments, glassware, wooden ware, woollen and cotton goods, soap and candles, boots and shoes, leather, brooms, brushes, furnaces, stoves, wire steel and spice mills, pottery and pump manufactures, etc. Besides its churches and schools, the city has a number of active literary societies, and many charitable institutions, hospitals, and public halls and parks. It sends two members to the House of Commons, and one to the Provincial Legislature. Its electrical system is by far the best in Canada, and is adapted to many and practically useful purposes. In the city are published several notable daily and weekly newspapers. Pop. (1901), 52,634; (1906), over 61,443.

HURONIAN, a station in Thunder Bay and Rainy River dist., N. W. Ont., on the Canadian Northern RR., 98 miles west of Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, and 45 miles east of Atikokan.

HURON, LAKE, the third in size of the five great lakes of North America, communicating with the St. Lawrence River, lies between 43° and 46° 15' N., lat., and between 80° and 84° 40' W., lon., being bounded on the S.S.W. by the State of Michigan, and on all other directions by the Province of Ontario, except where it receives its supplies from Lakes Michigan and Superior by the Straits of Mackinaw and Sault Ste. Marie, and at its outlet by St. Clair River. It is divided into two unequal portions by a long peninsula (Bruce co., Ont.), named Cabot's Head, and the Manitoulin chain of islands. The parts to the north and east are called Manitou (i.e., the Great Spirit) Bay, or the North Channel and Manitoulin Lake, or Georgian Bay. With the exception of these bodies of water, and Saginaw Bay, the outline of Lake Huron approaches in form very nearly to a crescent. Its position, lengthwise, is about S.S.E. and N.N.W., and the distance from one extremity to the other, following the curve, does not vary much from 280 miles. The greatest breadth, exclusive of Georgian Bay, is 105 miles; average breadth 70 miles; estimated area, 20,400 square miles. The area, in acres, of the portion of the lake in Canada, is 9,171,840 acres. The surface of the water is elevated 19 feet above Lake Erie, 350 feet above Ontario, and 600 feet above the level of the sea. The depth of Lake Huron is greater than that of any other in the chain, averaging, probably, not less than 100 feet. Off Saginaw Bay, it is said that leads have been sunk 1,800 feet, or 1,200 feet below the level of the Atlantic Ocean, without reaching bottom. The waters are remarkably clear, especially towards the Straits of Mackinaw, and very pure and sweet. It is to their peculiar transparency that Dr. Drake attributes the fact, which he ascertained by actual experiment, that the temperature of the water at the surface, and 200 feet below the same spot, was precisely the same—568. The sun's rays pass through them as through a cloudless atmosphere, without meeting with sufficient solid matter in suspension to elicit heat. This lake is said to contain upwards of 3,000 considerable islands. It is the reservoir of numerous streams, and its coast affords very fine harbors. Like most of the other lakes in the chain, it is subject to severe storms, but its navigation is not generally considered dangerous.
